Arizona.

The South, a monthly journal published in New York, has the following to say about our territory.

Our column in this issue upon the mineral resources of Arizona, and the steps which are being taken towards their development, when read in connection with our previous articles on the same subject, afford a glimpse of how extensive and rich a field exists in those but recently explored regions, for the employment of Eastern energy and capital.

With the knowledge afforded us by the numerous communications our contributors' articles have evoked from the remotest recesses of the Territory, we are amazed at the prodigality with which nature has lavished her richest deposits of the precious metals in the hills and valleys of that youngest acquisition to our Western domain, and we must needs ascribe the neglect of our people to utilize them, to their almost complete ignorance of their magnitude and value.

Although we are told that comparisons are odious, they may not be all ways out of place. Looking, then, at the incalculable capacity Arizona possesses for furnishing gold and silver, in rates varying from a hundred to a thousand dollars per ton of the ore in its mineral veins, why we ask, do our capitalists spend their resources and mechanical ingenuity in crushing ten and twelve dollar ore on the sterile slopes of the Black Hills, or thirty and forty dollar ore on the pinacles of the northern Sierras, where life is only tolerable for six months in the year, when such far richer fields are open to them under a Southern sky, where labor is carried on from January to December?

No reasonable answer to this proposition is possible, except that of utter ignorance, since no sane man is content with ten dollars, when, with smaller outlay of wear and work, he can acquire a hundred; and this ratio not unfairly represents the difference in mining profits between Dakota and Arizona.

The Government is about to purchase six hundred cows for the Apaches on San Carlos Indian Reservation. With the 600 cows the contractor will be expected to furnish twenty-five bulls without charge. All are required to be between two and five years old, good healthy animals of good size for stock cattle. The contractor will be required to give bond with two good sureties for double the amount of contract. The bids are to be sealed in envelopes marked "Proposals for Indian Stock Cattle," and directed to the Inspector of Indian Affairs at San Carlos Indian Agency, Arizona, where the cattle are to be delivered on or before the 20th of September next, subject to inspection by the Inspector and an army officer. The bids will be opened July 21st, at the Agency. Each bid should contain a certified check for five per cent. of the amount bid, and on some responsible bank.

A Santa Barbara young lady, Miss Holt, recently climbed to the top of the great half dome in the Yosemite Valley. The ascent for 900 feet is perpendicular, and is made by climbing a rope, made fast at the top, hand over hand, with the feet braced against the precipice. It is very difficult. But few ladies have ever accomplished the feat.
